He took part in consequence in the attack upon Flushing, and after serving on various parts of the Home station was ordered to North America when he commanded a launch at the destruction of Commodore Barney's flotilla up the Patuxent, landed in the unfortunate attack upon Baltimore, and previous to uniting in the operations against New Orleans, assisted as Acting Lieutenant in the boats of a Squadron at the capture on Lake Borgne of five American gunboats under Commodore Jones which did not surrender until the British in the course of a severe conflict had been occasioned a loss of 17 men killed and 77 men wounded. He entered the Navy 21st Oct. 1801, as 3rd Class Vol. on board the "Theseus," 74, Capt. John Bligh, with whom he proceeded to the West Indies, he served as a Midshipman in 1803 and '04 at the blockade of Cape François, the reduction of Port Dauphin where 2 forts and a 28-gun ship "La Sagesse" were taken from the enemy, the capture of the French squadron with the remains of General Rochambeau's army off Cape François, and the unsuccessful attempt on Curaçoa. In March 1805 some months after his transfer with Capt. Bligh to the "Surveillante," 38, he had the misfortune to be taken prisoner while in charge of a prize schooner off the coast of Vera Cruz. Being released by order of the Court at Madrid in Aug. 1807, he was sent to Jamaica, whence after a brief attachment to the "Shark" receiving ship, Capt. Christopher Bell, he returned home on the "Chichester," store-ship, Capt. Jas. Tait. On the 5th March the same year, Mr. Bigland, who had passed his examination but a few days previously, was promoted to the rank of Lieutenant, and from that date until the 31st Dec. 1813, he continued to serve with the present Sir George Cockburn almost uninterruptedly, in the "Pompée," 80, "Belleisle," "Implacable," "Alfred," 74, "Amphus," 50, "Marlborough," and "Sceptre," 74. During that period he served on shore with a party of seamen from the "Pompée" at the reduction of "Martinique," Feb. 1809, on which occasion he was in temporary command of the seamen's battery at the moment the enemy hoisted the white flag of capitulation—obtained in August following while in the "Belleisle" the public acknowledgments of Commr. Cockburn for his courage and zeal as his A.D.C.—at the siege of Flushing (London Gaz. 1809, p. 1326) was actively employed from 1810-12 in the "Implacable" and "Alfred" at the defence of Cadiz, and in the "Marlborough," 1, and "Sceptre," was a participator, as Flag Lieut. to his patron in most of those gallant achievements on the shores and up the rivers of North America with which the name of Cockburn is identified. He returned to England with Sir John Borlace Warren in the "St. Domingo," 74 at the commencement of 1814, and on the 15th June of the same year while acting in command of the "Jasper," 10, was presented with a second commission. Capt. Bigland's subsequent appointments were between 3rd Aug. 1818 and his advancement to Post rank the 6th March, 1821 to the "Parthian," 10, "Ontario," 18, "Bann," 20, in all of which he was most efficaciously employed in the protection of the British trade in the West Indies. He then, until Aug. 1821, commanded the "Euryalus," 42. His acceptance of the retirement took place 1st Oct. 1842, Capt. Bigland was nominated K.H. 25th June, 1836.
